Services for Waltermire tonight, tomorrow

By Dug Ellman
Kaimin Reporter

The burial mass for Secretary of State Jim Waltermire, who was killed when his plane crashed last week, will be held in Helena Wednesday at 10 a.m. in the Cathedral of St. Helena.

Waltermire, 39, and pilot James Andre Morris, 64, were killed when their plane crashed in a field four miles from the Helena airport. Waltermire, a Republican gubernatorial candidate, was returning to Helena from a three-day campaign trip to eastern and central Montana.

A wake service will be held tonight at 8 in the same church. Both services are open to the public. There also will be a private burial service following the Wednesday service.

A 1972 graduate of the University of Montana, Waltermire was elected Secretary of State in 1980 and was reelected to the office in 1984.

He was elected Missoula County Commissioner in 1977, and made an unsuccessful bid for the Western District Congressional seat in 1978.

While at UM, Waltermire was active in student politics, and was elected ASUM Business Manager in 1970. Professor Emeritus John Wicks, who was ASUM Senate faculty advisor during Waltermire's term, said Waltermire was "a very influential leader and a good student."

While working together through ASUM, the two became close friends and in 1975 they started the Missoula investment firm, Waltermire and Wicks.

Wicks said that to avoid possible conflicts of interest, Waltermire left the firm after he was elected Missoula County Commissioner.

Wicks continued his association with Waltermire, and was his issues advisor during the 1978 unsuccessful bid for Congress.

In 1986 Waltermire was accused of putting two former political advisors on the state payroll and using state funds to pay for campaign phone calls.

Wicks said he didn't put much credence in the charges.

"I dealt with Jim intimately enough and for a long enough time that I trusted him," Wicks added.

Controller's office adapting to computer system

By John Firehammer
Kaimin Reporter

After a rocky start, the University of Montana's Controller's office is adapting to a computerized accounting system installed last August, Rita Tucker, a Controller's office accountant said Monday.

During a changeover to the new accounting system, some UM bills were paid late and various campus department monthly budget statements were delayed.

Tucker listed staff reductions at the Controller's office due to university budget cuts and the amount of training time required to make the staff familiar with the new system as primary reasons for the delays.

Controller Kay Cotton said bill payments are being made on schedule and that UM is as current with payments now as it was under the old computer system.

Cotton explained that during the first stages of the changeover last summer, UM was overdue in paying telephone and power bills. The university accumulated about $234 in late fees for the bills, he said.

Tucker said the office needed about six months to "get caught up" with the new system. The office began sending out up-to-date department budget information beginning in February.

Laura Plute, an accounting technician in the forestry department, said her department started getting budget information on time last month. She said she thinks the problems with the new system are slowly being solved.

However, programming budget balances that carry over from the previous year is still a problem, Tucker said.

She said the system currently only has information since last July on record. But she said the office hopes to have complete information in the system by April 30.

Tucker said the advantage of the new system is its "timeliness." Departments now have computer terminal access to their own budget information on a daily basis, she said. Before the new system was installed, departments had to wait for each monthly statement to up-date their budgets.

Ex-diplomat says U.S. should leave China alone

Arthur Hummel

By Tim MacDonald
for the Kaimin

Retired Ambassador to China and 35-year veteran of the State Department, Arthur Hummel, says that the best foreign policy with China is to let nature take its course.

"I have been very happy that, since the election of 1980, China policy has not been an issue in a presidential campaign; and I hope it isn't going to be," Hummel said concerning potential U.S.-China foreign policy.

In 1980 "Reagan made it an issue, saying that he would upgrade our relations with Taiwan and change the bad policy of the Carter administration," Hummel said in an interview Monday.

"When he got into office he didn't do that," he said. "What the Reagan administration has done is to select a China policy that has the backing of the mainstream of American thought."

Hummel said China's policies towards Taiwan and Hong Kong are working out well without U.S. intervention and candidates who make China an issue during the campaign could harm relations with China.

Hummel will be lecturing in the Mansfield Center for the next three Tuesdays, in conjunction with the Center's "China and America" series.

His first lecture will be tonight at 7 in the Underground Lecture Hall. The lecture is titled "Chinese and Americans: Understanding and Experience." There is no charge and the lecture is open to the public.

Hummel was born in China in 1920 to American missionary parents, who left Beijing when he was eight.

OPINION

ASUM should be open to diverse opinions

The newly-elected ASUM president and vice president are members of the Campus Crusade for Christ, a campus-based religious organization. And their affiliation with that group seems to make some ASUM senators uncomfortable.

Last week ASUM president Jennifer Isern invited a staff member of Campus Crusade for Christ to speak to senators about leadership qualities.

The speech, part of a training session for new ASUM senators, caused a stir among some senators, who felt the presentation was "inappropriate" because it contained a Christian slant on leadership. They said that seemed out of place at a student government meeting.

But Isern stood by her decision in an interview Monday night. She explained that she invited staff member Donna Mershon to speak because she knew she would be able to "open the senators' minds a little and to challenge their ideas about what leadership includes."

I agree with Isern's decision. Face it. Elected ASUM representatives don't have much power. They allocate a $20 per quarter student activity fee to student groups. They also serve as a conduit between students and the UM administration and state Board of Regents.

So sitting still long enough to hear an opinion on leadership with a "Christian slant" shouldn't be too much to ask from our elected student representatives.

Isern said in a Kaimin interview last week that she was sorry if she had offended anyone by inviting Mershon to speak during the training session. She added that she doesn't think the speech was an attempt to tie ASUM "to any religion."

Isern shouldn't have to apologize. Student senators must be responsive to diverse opinions held by student groups on the campus they represent, even if listening to those opinions makes them a little uncomfortable. That's part of what being a leader is all about.

Senate member Chad Stoianoff said last week of Mershon's speech: "I thought I was a mannequin being set up for the big kill... it was much too personal."

He also said a "clear majority" of senators agreed the speech, titled, "Leadership," was inappropriate.

But Mershon said she only told the Senate that choosing a leader to follow is a personal decision. She added that she has chosen Christ as her own leader.

Mershon's Christian interpretation of leadership obviously challenged the new senate. Let's hope they continue to be challenged, but not threatened by opinions they find "inappropriate."

Hot air is Melcher's ammo

"DUMP THE WINDBAG! DUMP THE WINDBAG!" and "WILDERNESS IN, WINDBAG OUT!" were among the chants of conservationists Friday. John Melcher, a near unanimous winner of the U.S. Senate's Windbag Award, was in town Friday morning to speak briefly with students. He also came to speak at a Public Land Law Conference on mineral development held at the the Village Inn Red Lion.

Melcher arrived on campus 20 minutes late. Many students, feeling that he wasn't going to show up at all, had already left the Montana Rooms to go to the Red Lion to protest his recalcitrance on the Congressional Wilderness Bill. Melcher had recently chaired some hearings in Washington, D.C., and he showed a total disregard for the democratic process by inexcusably denying a witness from the University of Montana the opportunity to address the "committee" on our wildlands.

The witness was Mike Bader, who was partially funded by ASUM to represent student opinion with his testimony, which included the MontPIRG wilderness survey.

When confronted by ASUM President Jennifer Isern about his refusal to hear Bader, Melcher rambled on about how he would only hear a representative of the Blackfeet Tribe speak on the Badger/Two Medicine area. Curiously, the ethnic backgrounds of the witnesses for timber and mineral interests were not qualifiers as to the worthiness of their testimony.

Bader was there to represent UM students on the larger wilderness question. Melcher tried to change the subject when that was pointed out. Since Melcher had refused to hear Bader and was unwilling to accommodate students, Isern asked that ASUM be reimbursed. Melcher ignored her request, saying there was nothing he could do. Bull! At the very least, he could have written her a check or, as chairman of the committee, scheduled another hearing if he truly cared about our concerns.

Blustering, Melcher responded to pointed questions about specific areas of interest to members of the crowd with "I don't know" and "I can't recall" — a strange way to answer considering that he chaired the hearings. Doesn't he pay attention to anything? He was sitting in the front with the gavel, after all. Maybe he's suffering from Reagan Syndrome, dozing with his eyes open. I guess his loss of memory is quite common in D.C. these days, what with Reagan's cabinet in a state of constant retrenchment over such minor things as conflicts of interest.

When asked why there were no hearings in Montana, Melcher said that there had been hearings in Montana six years ago. Six years ago! A lot can change in six years and I think Melcher owes it to Montanans to have local hearings. Even Senator McClure of Idaho, no friend of wilderness by any stretch of the imagination, had local hearings for Idaho proposals. Not very many of us have the bucks to go two thousand miles to D.C. to tell the Congress about our deep love and respect for the wildlands of Montana, especially considering what happened to Bader. I know that I'd hate to go all that way for nothing.

Melcher seems to be unaware, or he doesn't care, that a large number of Montanans like myself support the designation of more wilderness here for a variety of reasons. The recent surge in emphasis on tourism dollars to help the state's economy is not going to be helped by massive clearcuts, smelters belching brown particulates and huge piles of tailings taken from holes in the ground. Maybe I completely misunderstand the reasons people visit this state. Melcher seems to think that they only come here to exploit — oops — develop natural resources.

Perhaps Melcher would understand us better if he took a short trip through at least one of the areas in question. Maybe we could accomplish the same thing if he flew over an area. He could provide an endless supply of hot air for a balloon. Dennis Small is a senior in English.

Ex-Lebanon captive says he felt like an animal

By Amy Cabe
for the Kaimin

While held captive in Lebanon for 564 days, the Rev. Lawrence Martin Jenco had a "sense of being an animal," he said Sunday night.

"When guards decided to go to the toilet, I'd go," he said, adding he often prayed, "I'm not an animal, I'm not a puppy dog ... I'm your son, and you sent Jesus for me."

Jenco, who was working as the director of Catholic Relief Services in Lebanon when he was kidnapped, spoke to about 200 people at Christ the King Church at 1400 Gerald Ave.

The Joliet, Ill., native said he had no control over his life while held captive by the Israeli-backed Islamic Jihad from Jan. 8, 1985, until July 26, 1987, when he was released because of his poor health.

A doctor, who came to Jenco's prison after another hostage died, recommended the kidnappers release Jenco because of nose bleeds and chest pains. Jenco said those symptoms frightened him because his father died while in his 50s of a heart attack.

Since his release, Jenco has been touring the U.S. and spoke in Missoula as part of the Catholic Campus Ministry's Newman Lecture Series.

His captors beat him, tied him to his cell wall with a chain and transported him from prison to prison in car trunks, he said, adding he often thought he would freeze.

When asked by captors if he was with the CIA, Jenco replied he was "VIA — Vatican Intelligence Agency."

The only thing that remained of his belongings after he was released, he noted, was one black button.

The kidnappers also took his glasses, without which he could do nothing but think of Scripture, Jenco said.

"I clung to Jesus," he said. "Prayer got me home."

He said while in Lebanon he helped build hostels and schools as well as touch the lives of those who had lost faith because of bureaucracy.

He urged people to help those less fortunate without regard for their denomination. Jenco's ministry aided nine different institutions, including Sunni, Shiite, and Jewish Moslem groups.

NEWS BRIEFS

Sands may take Waltermire's campaign reins

PELENA (AP) — The death of Secretary of State Jim Waltermire may not necessarily put an end to the Republican gubernatorial ticket he headed.

Campaign manager Chuck Brooke said Monday that according to running mate Rep. Jack Sands, R-Billings, campaign advisers would decide this week whether the campaign should continue under Sands.

Officials in the secretary of state's office said Monday that Waltermire's name will remain on the June primary ballot despite his death Friday.

They said it's too late to remove his name, which has been certified by the state and by county officials for the June 7 election.

Brooke said Waltermire supporters believe that under state law the ticket could still continue even though it would no longer be headed by Waltermire.

He said Sands, could continue campaigning in his official capacity as candidate for lieutenant governor.

Speakes says he put words into Reagan's mouth

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former White House spokesman Larry Speakes says in a new book that on two occasions he attributed to President Reagan remarks that the president did not make.

Speakes says that in 1983, after the shooting down of a Korean Air Lines plane with 61 Americans aboard, he credited Reagan with statements made by Secretary of State George Shultz.

He also says during Reagan's 1985 summit meeting with Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev in Geneva he attributed to Reagan remarks that he and an assistant press secretary, Mark Weinberg, manufactured.

Speakes, who has often boasted that he never lied to the press as Reagan's chief spokesman, makes the statements in his book, "Speaking Out."

Genetic mouse patent approved, report says

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government has approved a patent for a genetically altered mouse in what is the first patent to be issued for an animal, according to a published report.

The Patent and Trademark Office approved the patent, and congressional sources said it had been granted to Harvard University for use in cancer-related research. The Washington Post reported in Tuesday editions.

Patent office spokesman Oscar Mastin declined to confirm the Post report, but said Patent and Trademark Commissioner Donald Quigg would announce "a significant patent" at a news conference Tuesday.

UM International Week has events galore

By Gabrielle Tolliver
Kaimin Reporter

A banquet and cultural show featuring ethnic foods, songs and dances will be a highlight of UM's international week, Abdullah Faraj, the week's publicity coordinator, said Monday.

"International Week '88," which is sponsored by the international Students Association, will be held from April 12-17.

Events include:

• April 12 — Former Ambassador to China, Arthur Hummel Jr., will present a lecture titled "China and America: Understanding and Experience." The lecture, which is being sponsored by the Mansfield Center, will be at 7 p.m. in the Underground Lecture Hall.

• April 13 — A panel presentation on "International Career Options" will be presented at 3 p.m. in the Liberal Arts Building Room 305. Panel members will discuss how American students may find opportunities to work in foreign countries.

• April 13 — The Peace Corps will present a film, "The Toughest Job You'll Ever Love," which is about volunteers in Nepal, Columbia and Nigeria. The film will be shown at 7 p.m. in the University Center Montana Rooms.

• April 14 — A feature-length Chinese film, "Zheng Zheng's Hairdressing Shop," will be shown at 7 p.m. in the Social Science Building Room 252.

• April 15 — There will be an International Fair featuring information booths about countries and ethnic foods, crafts and entertainment from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the UC Mall.

• April 16 — The International Students' cricket team will face a UM faculty team in a cricket match. The match will be held from 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. and again at 2 p.m. at the Clover Bowl, in front of Brantly Hall.

• April 16 — There will be International Students Association volleyball and badminton tournaments at 7:30 p.m. in McGill Hall.

• April 17 — A soccer tournament featuring UM international teams and teams from Montana Tech, Northern Idaho College and Malstrom Airforce Base will be held at 9 a.m. at Fort Missoula, instead of Playfair Field as previously announced.

• April 17 — The International Banquet and Cultural Show will be held at 6 p.m. in the UC Ballroom. Tickets are $8.50 for the general public, $3.75 for children under 12, $7.50 for students and senior citizens, and $4.50 plus a meal taken off for students with meal passes. They may be purchased at the Foreign Students Office or the U.C. Bookstore until Friday, April 15.

Kuwaiti jet hijackers kill another hostage

LARNACA, Cyprus (AP) — Arab hijackers on Monday killed a second hostage, tossed his bloody body from a Kuwaiti jet and threatened to kill the rest of the nearly 50 captives if the plane wasn't refueled.

The gunmen said the dead man was a "Kuwaiti officer." He was the second of three Kuwaiti military men aboard Kuwait Airway's jet that the hijackers have slain during the week-long ordeal.

The hijackers have demanded that

Kuwait release 17 pro-Iranian terrorists convicted in 1984 for bombing the U.S. and French embassies in December 1983.

Sources close to the negotiations said, however, that the hijackers on Monday demanded freedom only for the three men among the 17 who have been sentenced to death.

In Kuwait, Foreign Minister Sheikh Sabah al-Ahmed al-Sabah said his country is prepared to lose more hostages rather than give in to terrorism.

There are 52 people aboard the Boeing 747, including three members of the Kuwaiti royal family, as well as the hijackers, who are masked by blue hoods fashioned from airline pillow cases and armed with grenades and handguns.

Sabah said there are at least eight hijackers, all of them Arabs, carrying forged passports.

He sidestepped a question about whether the jet would be stormed, saying that was a matter for the Cypriot authorities since the plane was on their territory.

The man killed Monday was pushed from the blue-and-white plane at 3:07 p.m. (8:07 a.m. EDT) after Cypriot officials ignored two deadlines to refuel the jet.

Doctors at Larnaca morgue said he had suffered injuries to the side of his face, apparently from a beating. They said he had been shot twice in the head at close range before his body, hands bound behind his back, was thrown onto the tarmac at Larnaca Airport.

Athletes of the week out-of-state

BOISE (AP) — Weber State College sprinter Dan Baird and Boise State triple jumper Wendell Lawrence have been named the Big Sky Conference outdoor track and field athletes of the week.

League Commissioner Ron Stephenson said Tuesday that Baird was honored in track and Lawrence in field events in a vote of Big Sky coaches.

Baird, a freshman from Ogden, Utah, won the 200-meters last week in the Standard Examiner Invitational in Ogden, in a time of 21.70 seconds to set a new Weber State freshman mark.

Lawrence, a senior from Nassau, Bahamas, won the triple jump with a Big Sky season best of 54 feet 10 1/2 inches at the Fresno State Invitational last week in Fresno, Calif.

The jump was a Boise State school record and an NCAA qualifying mark.

Pirates paste Phillies at home

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Barry Bonds tripled and scored in the first inning and hit a solo home run in the third, and Mike LaValliere had a three-run homer, as the Pittsburgh Pirates beat the Philadelphia Phillies 5-1 Monday night before the largest home crowd in Pirates' history.

The paid attendance of 54,089 broke the record of 52,119 set in the Pirates' home opener last year against St. Louis. The total attendance, counting complimentary tickets, was 57,102.

Vincente Palacios bailed out Pittsburgh starter Doug Dra-bek, 1-0, from a bases-loaded, none-out jam in the sixth and worked three scoreless innings. Jeff Robinson pitched the ninth.

Indians trample Tigers, win sixth game this year

CLEVELAND (AP) — Dave Clark, filling in for injured Joe Carter, drove in the tie-breaking run with a sixth-inning single and Mel Hall had four hits Monday as the Cleveland Indians extended their winning streak to six games with a 7-2 victory over the Baltimore Orioles.

Baltimore lost its sixth straight game to match the Orioles' 1955 club record for losses at the start of a season. They have been outscored 43-7.

The Indians, 6-1, moved into first place in the AL East by a half-game over New York. They are off to their best start since they were 10-0 in 1966.

Cleveland left-hander Greg Swindell, 2-0, pitched his second complete game of the year and the Indians' fourth, striking out eight and not walking a batter while allowing eight hits.

Mike Morgan, 0-2, took the loss.

AS A NAVY PILOT THE SKY'S YOUR ONLY LIMIT.

Once you've punched through the clouds in an F-14, catapulted off the deck of a carrier, passed the speed of sound twice over, and mastered the aircraft and skills to do it, no challenge will seem too great. You'll be leading the adventure. As an officer and pilot in the U.S. Navy, you'll be getting the kind of experience you need to make your career really take off.

It begins with Navy flight training where you'll learn state-of-the-art navigation, aerodynamics and computer technology. It continues as one of the most thrilling and rewarding careers you can choose.

After only four years, you'll be earning at least $35,000. And you'll be receiving an outstanding benefits package with 30 days' paid vacation each year, medical and dental care, low-cost life insurance and tax-free allowances.

To qualify, you must have a BA or a BS degree, be no more than 25 years old, be able to pass an aptitude test and physical examination, and be a U.S. citizen.

If you have a dream of adventure and your aspirations are lofty, find out more about being a Navy pilot. Call: Within Washington State, 1-800-562-4009; Outside Washington State, 1-800-426-3626

Anti-LSD posters aid purpose, Willett says

Posters warning against LSD-laced rub-on tattoos, which are up on campus, serve a legitimate concern regardless where they came from, according to UM Safety and Security manager Ken Willett.

Willett said Monday that he had assumed the posters were from the Missoula County Sheriff's Department when one of his officers brought in a copy from Lolo, but found later that they came from a Kalispell Mormon Church youth group.

Before he discovered their origins, he had sent memos to deans and department chairs along with copies of the drug warning to be copied and distributed.

Director of residence halls, Ron Brunell, in turn told resident assistants to put up the warnings in the dormitories.

According to the Sheriff's Department, those posters, which have been placed in dorms, campus buildings and around Missoula, don't indicate any increase in LSD use although they are accurate.

The warning states that stamps and tattoos of cartoon characters laced with LSD are being distributed in Montana. Underneath two skull-and-crossbone symbols, the flyer states:

"A young child could happen upon these and have a fatal 'trip.'"

Willett said he distributed the warning around campus for the benefit of students with children.

Brunell is concerned about someone using such a drug "unknowingly."

"Most of our students are sophisticated enough to know that this has been going on in the past," Brunell said.

'Hummel'

This enabled his father, a noted scholar on China, to take a position as Chief of the Oriental Division of the Library of Congress. In 1940, Hummel returned to study in China.

After the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor in 1941, Hummel was captured by Japanese troops in China and held in an internment camp as an "enemy alien." He escaped in 1944 and joined a group of Chinese Nationalist guerrillas, who he fought with behind enemy lines until V-J Day in 1945.

He earned his M.A. in Chinese studies from the University of Chicago in 1949, and in 1950 he began his career with the State Department.

Hummel has served as Assistant Secretary of State, and as Ambassador to: Burma, Pakistan, Ethiopia, and finally to the Peoples Republic of China from 1981 until his retirement in 1985. He currently works as a consultant for firms who do business in China.

Hummel does not agree with media criticism of recent Chinese reforms, saying those reports lead people to believe the Chinese government is divided on the issue.

"There are plenty of disagreements about how to do it, and how fast to do it, and what to do next, and how to solve the problems," he said. "But everyone has agreed on the general course of reform."

When asked about China's tendency towards a more capitalistic economic system, Hummel replied: "I prefer to look at this as a manifestation world-wide, where all of the communist countries have discovered that that system does not work."

"Instead of looking at capitalism as a goal, it's just the opposite," he said. "They are in revulsion against the Leninist system ... that just doesn't work."

About Glasnost possibly changing the Sino-Russian relationship, Hummel said: "I think that they are going to slowly warm up, but there are sharp limits on how far they can go. They will never get back to the point where they were before the split, around 1960."

When asked whether the United States should take an intermediary role between Russia and China in settling their potentially volatile dispute, he said: "This is a rivalry among very powerful communist powers, over which we have no leverage."
